

PUBLIC LEADER

THIRD YEAR.

MAYSVILLE, KY., MONDAY, APRIL 9, 1894.

ONE CENT.

IT'S SO F
IT'S IN
THE LEDGER.

CHENOWETH'S Sarsaparilla is the best. THOMAS GUILFORD has been granted liquor license.

C. T. ANDERSON paid Charles Biggers $7,900 for his interest in the firm of Wells & Biggers, liveymen.

CLAIMS allowed at the recent session of the Masonic Fiscal Court amounted to $1,983.35—a very small sum for a county like ours.

ONE of the damage suits against the Phoenix Bridge Company for $25,000 has been compromised out of court at Louisville for $3,000.

CAROLINE M. COLBURN, widow of the late Andrew J. Colburn, has been granted a pension of $12 a month, and $2 per month for her child, dating from September 25th, 1883.

At Portsmouth in May last Richard Zoek, in the employ of Newman & Spanner, was accidentally killed by a "Spaulding's" which he was operating for the firm. His estate now uses the concern for $10,000 damages for his death.

MISS MINNIE McDONOUGH and Miss Minnie Eastham, both of this city, have their handsome faces in the last number of The Illustrated Kuckian. There also appears a splendid likeness of the Rev. Dr. E. H. Pearce of Danville, who was born in this county and studied law in this city with the late Hon. R. H. Stanton.

JOHN BLAND, who went his one eye on the Pollard-Breckinridge case by volunteering a good many stories about Miss Pollard that other witnesses knocked into a cocked hat, is about to lose his position as janitor of a schoolhouse in Lexington. He is a brother-in-law of Mayor Duncan, who appointed him to the place, and who will now be requested to ask him to step down and out.

THE News says it can give no encouragement to the public for the coming week's business at Ashland. The plants in operation this week have sufficient work ahead of them to keep them busy about the same scale, but of those larger idle industries that have the greater share of the public attention and speculation we can say nothing. Neither of these has made any announcement of an intended resumption, and it is not expected by the employes that anything will be forthcoming soon.

LAST NIGHT'S SERVICES.

A tremendous outpouring at Four of the City Churches.

Although there were services last evening at only four of the churches—the Episcopal, Christian, First Presbyterian and First Baptist—there were probably more people in attendance than on any previous evening in the history of the city.

Services were conducted at the Church of the Nativity by Bishop Dudley, and there were several additional and commendations.

At the Christian Church Rev. Cate was greeted by an immense congregation, the aisles and all available room being filled with chairs.

Rev. T. W. Watts preached at the First Presbyterian Church to ladies only, and the magnificent audience-room was filled to its utmost capacity. This was an adjunct to the Five meeting.

At the First Baptist Church Evangelist Fife spoke to men only, and the house was packed to the doors. It is safe to say that scores of men were present who have not before in years known what the interior of a church looked like, and the closest attention was given throughout.

Prayers were asked for many—from the Mayor to the last policeman, for the local judges, for the lawyers, the doctors, the liquor dealers, the merchants and the mechanics; for the traveling men and the laborers—for all in fact save the poor devils who wrestle with an exacting public through the daily press, devoting sixteen hours a day to the never-ending strain, and too often deprived of the privilege of church-going. Mr. Fife is surely earnest in his work, and while he did not, strictly speaking, deliver a sermon, his remarks were forcible and effective.

The meetings will continue at the First Baptist Church until Thursday evening.

Services today as follows: At 10:30 a. m.: Young Ladies' Meeting at the home of Mrs. Mary Cox at 230 p. m.: Ladies' Meeting at First Presbyterian Church, 8:30; Men's Meeting, Baptist Church, 9:30; Union Meeting at same place at 7:15 p. m.

MISS JULIA ADAMS died suddenly of heart disease at Carlisle Saturday. She had been afflicted for several years, but her death was a great shock, as she made several social calls during the day.

MISS JULIA ADAMS died suddenly of heart disease at Carlisle Saturday. She had been afflicted for several years, but her death was a great shock, as she made several social calls during the day.

Milton Johnson is in the South on legal business.

Hal C. Curran returned from Danville Saturday.

Captain C. M. Phister was in Cincinnati Saturday.

Miss Mary Jones of Augusta is enjoying a visit here.

Mrs. N. S. Wood has returned from a visit at Covington.

Miss Julia Carey of Ripley is the guest of Miss Cora Lowry.

Hon. A. E. Cole returned home on the P. & V. yesterday afternoon.

Major Frank H. Clark was registered on "Change at Cincinnati" Friday.

Miss Alice Loeke of Ripley will make her home with friends in Ashland.

R. D. H. Hughes of Wallingford, Fleming county, was in the city Saturday.

Robert Tolle, a student at Georgetown College, is spending a few days at home.

William Shepard returned Saturday night after a few days visit in Cincinnati.

Mrs. M. J. Lyons of Cincinnati is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George T. Wood.

Miss Katherine Bierly has returned home after a visit of five weeks at Cincinnati.

Miss Elizabeth Schwartz returned home Saturday night after a five weeks visit at Cincinnati.

Mrs. G. W. Bryan and Miss Nora L. Wadell of Millersburg are guests of Mrs. John W. Boulton.

Walker Baughman and J. P. Kirwin leave this morning to join Fred Locke's circus as billposters.

Buckner Wall came home Saturday night for a visit to his parents, Hon. and Mrs. Garrett S. Wall.

James B. Wilson and bride will leave Tuesday on the morning train for Lexington, where they will make their future home.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Adamson and children have been spending a few days in the country, guests of Colonel Evan Lloyd.

What Has Done This Morning at the Temple of Justice.

The April term of County Court convened this morning, Judge Phister presiding.

The following settlements, laid over from last term, were ordered to record: R. H. Koehlich, administrator of T. P. Best.

S. S. Watson, administrator of John W. Watson.

Union Trust Co., guardian of Andrew Rogers.

N. N. Watson, executor of Alfred Tuel.

A. P. Gooding and J. W. Prather, executors of G. W. Prather.

A. P. Gooding, guardian of Lizzie P. Gooding.

A. P. Gooding, guardian of Adelle P. Gooding.

J. F. Perrine, guardian of T. J. Bacon.

Martha B. Thomas, guardian of Mary C. Thomas.

Martha C. Thomas, guardian of J. B. Thomas.

T. P. Pickett, guardian of Patrick Osborne.

M. J. Mitchell, administrator of Mary A. Russell.

Thomas Wells, guardian of Elizabeth D. Riley.

W. E. Clift, guardian of Richard Whoolsey.

Settlements produced today, to lie over to next term for exceptions:

Martha L. Watson, guardian of Belle S. and Rosa L. Watson.

R. B. Ward, administrator of Mrs. Susan Russell.

J. J. Keenan, guardian of Martha J. Puppely.

F. D. Watson and A. J. Siles, guardians of Mary M. Lullie B. and W. H. Howard.

J. E. Hill, executor of Susan Paul.

O. N. Weaver and J. M. Byar, trustees of Hiett fund.

F. O'Donnell, trustee of James D. Gann.

Allice A. Heinrich, guardian of Nettie V. Juppely.

Henry F. Otto was granted liquor license.

MISS MINNIE COHEN has about recovered from a recent severe illness.

TAKEN a peep at our 84 cent wall paper in show window. I bet we ever showed.

J. T. KAWLEY & CO.

THE Kentucky men and game club held a meeting and decided to prosecute all visitors of the new man and game law.

PRIVATE individuals are to start a chair factory at Frankfort presumably in opposition to the one run by the state in the penitentiary.

THE Ives Senate passed the House bill giving women claim to vote for town, city and school officers, and on all questions on issuing bonds.

REV. CLEMENT W. LEWIS, a colored preacher, was sentenced at Chattanooga to twenty-eight years imprisonment for wholesale pension frauds.

THE Massachusetts Senate by a vote of 23 to 13 killed the bill granting municipal suffrage to women. A proposition to submit the question to a popular vote was also defeated.

In an exciting contest at Manchester N. H. Will Darnell ate forty-three hard boiled eggs in five minutes, defeating four competitors. After the contest was over the Dr. called for cake and took it.

THE Progress is blinking because the Town Trustees of Elkton awarded the city printing to The Times at $10 per column. City and county printing should only be awarded to papers with the largest circulation.

ROBERT JONES, a worthless young man living at Vandalia, Hopkins county, Saturday shot and killed his wife and mortally wounded his mother-in-law. Then he went to his father's gate and killed him self, saving a mob the trouble.

THE advance guard of the unemployed, forty-one in number, was welcomed at Washington Saturday, the police meeting them at the city limits and escorting them to the city hall.

THE Louisville distillers have begun a movement for the suppression of the "white jobbers' private brands. The practice of making whiskey under such brands for wholesale dealers has become so general that many distillers think it is injurious to the trade for their own brands.

A BILL intended to meet some of the President's objections to the Bland Seigniorage Bill has been introduced in the House by Mr. Meyer of Louisiana. It provides for the coining of standard silver dollars and authorizes the issue of 3 per cent. bonds in small denominations.

THE Grand Jury of Fayette county has gone into the free advertising business. It has returned two indictments against C. C. Moore, of Blounts Run fame, one for blasphemy and one for a nuisance. Why don't you let the barnyard literary! All he wants is cheap notoriety.

ONE of THE LEADER'S Mayday subscribers sent a letter a few days ago with out any name signed to it. And Saturday another one inclosed a sum of money in an envelope and sent it, without a letter or note of any sort. As the Business Manager and Editor neither of them doesn't know who to credit with the amount, Friends, please remember that nobody but Editors and Postmasters are allowed to make mistakes. Meantime, who sent the money?

BUILDING ASSOCIATION RECEIPTS.

The receipts of the several Building Associations of this city Saturday night were as follows:

Prisoners' Association, $1,410.20

Limestone, 1,979.39

People's, 1,067.85

Total, $3,457.33

JACK'S NARROW ESCAPE.

Kentucky's Poet Laureate Shaken Up in a Lively Runaway.

Major Henry T. Stanton, poet laureate of this state, had a very narrow escape with his life a few days since.

He was driving with his son in law, C. W. Dorrie.

The horse became frightened near Duiker's Station, about four miles East of Frankfort, and dashed frantically away, throwing both the Major and Mr. Dorrie violently to the ground.

The blooded animal, however, carried the occupants at a rapid rate for some distance before they were ejected, and beyond the bad scare both received, neither was permanently injured.

MARRIED IN CINCINNATI.

Ben. U. Steele and Miss Leone B. Porter of Catlettsburg.

Benjamin U. Steele, better known as Ben, is Clerk of the Circuit Court at Catlettsburg, and for some time he has been paying undivided attention to Miss Leone B. Porter, a Public School teacher of the same town.

This morning Mr. Steele was going to Cincinnati on a short business trip, and as Miss Porter wished to do some shopping in the same city, and was quite fond of Ben's society, they made up their minds to go together, and while away from "Ma and Pa" would be joined in the holy bonds of matrimony.

The venturesome couple arrived at the Palace Friday, and on Saturday evening Rev. E. S. Lewis of Trinity M. E. Church was called in and they were made one of a few minutes after 8 o'clock.

When the Pastor stepped up on the dais last night, and today they are busy squaring things with the young lady's parents.

THERE is one unhappy Democrat in Montgomery county. The Postoffice at Aaron's Run has been abolished.

THE Board of Managers of the Louisville Baptist Orphan's Home decided to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the establishment of the home.

In 1819 the I. O. O. F. numbered just five members. Now there are over one million contributing Oddfellows. The increase last year was over $9,000.

THE Illustrious Order of the Red Cross will be conferred by Maysville Commandery on a class of eight Companions on the 23rd inst., followed by the Templar Order on the 24th.

JOHN D. TAGGART, H. W. Brice, the Rev. Charles R. Hemphill, J. Ross Todd and ex-Governor J. Proctor Knott have been appointed delegates to attend the National convention of the Scotch-Irish Society at Des Moines, Iowa, June 19th.

Out in Iowa.

Mrs. D. H. Smith, formerly Mrs. L. A. Thompson of Paducah, Ky., writes a very entertaining letter to THE LEADER from West Liberty, Iowa, which has been her home for two years. She says of ex-Kentuckians residing in that locality:

William Lee, a former Fleming county boy, who came to this state about twenty-seven years ago, is now living in Des Moines and is in prosperous circumstances and doing well. Gilbert Arnold and wife, a daughter of Jonathan Lewman of Mt. Carmel, lives near here on a fine farm.

MR. POLLARD A MASON.

Died in Good Standing in the Full Fellowship of the Order.

In a letter to The Courier Journal J. D. Pettus, Master of Crab Orchard Lodge No. 636, F. & A. M., says:

John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"He was admitted to membership in Crab Orchard Lodge of Masons No. 423 on the 31st day of January, 1876, on dimit John D. Pollard, father of Madeline Pollard, died in Crab Orchard, Ky., on the 21st day of June, 1876. He was buried by the Oddfellows, assisted by the Masons. He requested that the Oddfellows should take charge of his remains, as he was very devoted to that order, having presided at Grand Master over the Grand Lodge of Kentucky of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

"

RESCRIPTIONS IN ADVANCE.
 One Year $1.00
 Six Months .75
 Three Months .50
 CENTS DELIVERED BY CARRIER.
 Payable in advance at end of month.

LARGEST IN THE CITY.

TO ADVERTISERS.

Advertising rates uniform and reasonable and made known on application at the office.

Subscribers who fail to get the Ledger regularly will be notified by the fact at the OFFICE.

There are strong indications that the People of Kansas are regaining their senses. At the recent election the Republicans knocked the everlasting 'stuffs' out of the Populists.

At the recent Ohio election the city of Hamilton, a strong Democratic city with a majority of from 1,500 to 2,000, walked into the arms of the Republican party. Hamilton is pre-eminently a manufacturing city. They have been made to feel the weight of Democratic supremacy in National affairs, and took this method of making their protest against the passage of the Wilson Bill heard in the Senate chamber at Washington.

The signal defeat of the Democratic party in the local elections on Long Island has a double significance. The overthrow of the Democratic candidates was due partly to a revolt of reputable citizens against boss rule. But the chief cause of the Republican victories was indignation and disgust with the program of industrial destruction at Washington, which has made every community a scene of poverty, idleness and misery. The same lesson was at work in these towns that has displayed itself throughout the North in recent local elections. Let Tariff tinkers and Democratic bosses take new warning!

WELL, here is some more information for you, Brother MASH. The corrected election returns from Rhode Island show that the Republican victory is even greater than at first supposed. Governor BROWN is re-elected by a plurality of over 6,000, the entire Republican slate is victorious by about the same plurality, and the Republicans have 102 out of 104 members of the Grand Committee. The Democratic strongholds of Newport, Pawtucket, Slateland, Cumberland and Tiverton returned handsome Republican pluralities.

The next U. S. Senator will be a Republican.

JUST a few more "howls" this morning! INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 5th.—The Union supporters of this city went on strike this morning. The Union is composed of twelve hundred men, and the leaders claim that nearly half this number were at work have stopped work.

MANCHESTER, April 5th.—The latest in Craft & Green's shoe factory are on strike in consequence of a reduction of ten cents per pair.

STRUCTURE, April 5th.—One hundred and twenty-five of the 200 employees of the Saratoga Tube Co. are out on a strike in October the company reduced the wages 10 per cent, and in February the entire force was again cut 10 per cent. Superintendent Telford posted a notice that the February reduction was to be restored on Monday. The men demanded the October scale, and upon the company's refusal they went out.

WHEELING, W. Va., April 5th.—This evening, at a general meeting of the stone masons and bricklayers of this city, a general strike, to begin tomorrow, was ordered against a reduction of ten cents an hour in the rate of wages. Hereafter they have been receiving forty cents an hour. Four hundred men will go out.

MARSHALL, S. D., April 5th.—An appeal for assistance was sent out by the village of North Lawrence today, in behalf of the 300 miners in that place who are victims of the lockout in the Massillon mining district. Families who for twenty years have lived in plenty are now destitute, and almost starving.

[To be continued throughout the entire edition of this Democratic Anti-Slavery Administration.]

BICYCLE RIDING.

Some of Its Benefits to the Physical System.

An Anatomist Discovers Interestingly Upon This Most Pleasurable Form of Exercise That It Corrects Position.

The use of the bicycle as a means of exercise ranks, in my opinion, as foremost among the beneficial forms of exercise that may be taken, says a writer in the International Journal of Surgery. It ranks equally with horseback riding, rowing, swimming and is superior to walking, besides this it is a means of rapid transportation and forces the rider into the open air. It is an active exercise that can be proportioned to the weakest and the strongest. He who desires vigorous exercise can obtain it. No one can ride a bicycle and not have his thoughts taken out of himself, and at the same time have his attention pleasantly engaged.

After a careful study I believe the following to be its effect in health: Under moderate, sensible use the perspiration is not increased, but deepened; the heart beats slightly increased, and the blood by these means and the alternate contractions of the muscles receives a larger proportion of oxygen and is more evenly distributed over the body, preventing congestions. The effects materials in the system are rapidly removed, and oxidation, which is essential to health, is more perfectly performed. Upon the stomach and the intestines there is a secondary but noticeable effect, viz: increased digestive power with increased capacity for food. This in its turn enriches the blood. The increased circulation of blood also increases the digestive power of the stomach, viz: increased functional power.

Upon the muscular system it has a direct effect, increasing their size, their hardness and power. Secondly it trains the great spinal centers to perform complex movements and acts as a balance to over-spinal action, gives increased coordination with lessened expenditure of nervous force. The acts become automatic. Its effect upon the brain is of great benefit. It develops the motor area of the brain and in it permits of a combination of intricate muscular acts. Again, take a man who has exercised his intellectual faculties to the utmost; he, as a consequence, increased circulation in the intellectual area of his brain.

By means of his muscular improvements and by bringing into play the muscular and emotive centers of his brain he changes the force and direction of the cerebral blood current, relieving and reviving the higher intellectual centers. And, lastly, it gives that elasticity and carriage, that solidity of gait, which bespeak the healthy individual, while his constitution, animal spirits and rosy complexion are in very great contrast to the uncertain movements, sickly smile, limp, pesty, green-looking skin of the reclus and overworked man.

There is one thing against which I wish to take an unquestioned and decided stand—that is, the incorrect position assumed by many riders. This position is the resultant of a compressed vanity, or lack of knowledge, and has caused many unfavorable comment upon this silent foe. The correct position is that of a modified position of the soldier—a position of command, grace and perfect muscular control. The rider should have his handle bars so adjusted that when he sits perfectly erect the palm of his hand rests upon the bar without resting upon the arm muscles. The arms should be comfortably extended, and the trunk as far as possible held erect without being stiff. The legs can then be extended with comfort and without interference with the return circulation from the lower limbs. If one will stand perfectly erect, the arms close to the body, and the arms fixed at right angles, and the lower limbs separated, about eight inches at the heels, he will understand thoroughly what I mean by a modified position of the soldier.

QUEER FUNERAL CUSTOMS.

In Shropshire, England, They Ring the Dead Home When Funerals are Moving. In Shropshire, England, there is a custom of "ringing the dead home"—that is, chiming all the bells instead of ringing only one while a funeral is on its way to the church. When the procession nears the churchyard gate the chiming is stopped and a minute bell is tolled. The sexton's fees at Much Wenlock, as laid down in 1796, include "a chime, if required, before the funeral, id." At Ilchester, a small town in Devonshire, it was the prevalent custom to ring a lively peal on the church bells after a funeral, as elsewhere after a wedding.

That funerals should be used as a means for the encouragement of trade may seem somewhat strange in this hypersensitive age; yet Mr. Howlett, in his article on "Burial Customs," in the Westminster Review, tells us that the custom which still prevails of sending up a corpse in flannel originated doubtless in the act of parliament 18 and 19, Charles II., which was passed for the encouragement of the flannel trade, and required all bodies to be buried in woolen shrouds. Two amending statutes were passed—1673 and 1680—requiring that the flannel be delivered to the priest stating that the requirements of the law had been carried out; otherwise penalties were incurred. These laws were repealed by 54 George III., although long before that time the penalties of non-compliance with the law had ceased to be enforced. During the epidemic of the year 1720, when the custom of burying in wadded goods the law was sometimes evaded by covering the corpse with hay or straw, and the custom of wadding sometimes met with the parish registers.

Easy to Take

and keep the system in Perfect Order.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS

A specific for Headache, Constipation, and Dyspepsia. Every dose Effective

Allen A. Edmonds,

No. 10 East Third Street, Public Ledger Building, Maysville, Ky.

Edmonds,

No. 10 East Third Street, Public Ledger Building, Maysville, Ky.

Printer.

On the muscular system it has a direct effect, increasing their size, their hardness and power. Secondly it trains the great spinal centers to perform complex movements and acts as a balance to over-spinal action, gives increased coordination with lessened expenditure of nervous force. The acts become automatic. Its effect upon the brain is of great benefit. It develops the motor area of the brain and in it permits of a combination of intricate muscular acts. Again, take a man who has exercised his intellectual faculties to the utmost; he, as a consequence, increased circulation in the intellectual area of his brain.

By means of his muscular improvements and by bringing into play the muscular and emotive centers of his brain he changes the force and direction of the cerebral blood current, relieving and reviving the higher intellectual centers. And, lastly, it gives that elasticity and carriage, that solidity of gait, which bespeak the healthy individual, while his constitution, animal spirits and rosy complexion are in very great contrast to the uncertain movements, sickly smile, limp, pesty, green-looking skin of the reclus and overworked man.

There is one thing against which I wish to take an unquestioned and decided stand—that is, the incorrect position assumed by many riders. This position is the resultant of a compressed vanity, or lack of knowledge, and has caused many unfavorable comment upon this silent foe. The correct position is that of a modified position of the soldier—a position of command, grace and perfect muscular control. The rider should have his handle bars so adjusted that when he sits perfectly erect the palm of his hand rests upon the bar without resting upon the arm muscles. The arms should be comfortably extended, and the trunk as far as possible held erect without being stiff. The legs can then be extended with comfort and without interference with the return circulation from the lower limbs. If one will stand perfectly erect, the arms close to the body, and the arms fixed at right angles, and the lower limbs separated, about eight inches at the heels, he will understand thoroughly what I mean by a modified position of the soldier.

There is one thing against which I wish to take an unquestioned and decided stand—that is, the incorrect position assumed by many riders. This position is the resultant of a compressed vanity, or lack of knowledge, and has caused many unfavorable comment upon this silent foe. The correct position is that of a modified position of the soldier—a position of command, grace and perfect muscular control. The rider should have his handle bars so adjusted that when he sits perfectly erect the palm of his hand rests upon the bar without resting upon the arm muscles. The arms should be comfortably extended, and the trunk as far as possible held erect without being stiff. The legs can then be extended with comfort and without interference with the return circulation from the lower limbs. If one will stand perfectly erect, the arms close to the body, and the arms fixed at right angles, and the lower limbs separated, about eight inches at the heels, he will understand thoroughly what I mean by a modified position of the soldier.

There is one thing against which I wish to take an unquestioned and decided stand—that is, the incorrect position assumed by many riders. This position is the resultant of a compressed vanity, or lack of knowledge, and has caused many unfavorable comment upon this silent foe. The correct position is that of a modified position of the soldier—a position of command, grace and perfect muscular control. The rider should have his handle bars so adjusted that when he sits perfectly erect the palm of his hand rests upon the bar without resting upon the arm muscles. The arms should be comfortably extended, and the trunk as far as possible held erect without being stiff. The legs can then be extended with comfort and without interference with the return circulation from the lower limbs. If one will stand perfectly erect, the arms close to the body, and the arms fixed at right angles, and the lower limbs separated, about eight inches at the heels, he will understand thoroughly what I mean by a modified position of the soldier.

There is one thing against which I wish to take an unquestioned and decided stand—that is, the incorrect position assumed by many riders. This position is the resultant of a compressed vanity, or lack of knowledge, and has caused many unfavorable comment upon this silent foe. The correct position is that of a modified position of the soldier—a position of command, grace and perfect muscular control. The rider should have his handle bars so adjusted that when he sits perfectly erect the palm of his hand rests upon the bar without resting upon the arm muscles. The arms should be comfortably extended, and the trunk as far as possible held erect without being stiff. The legs can then be extended with comfort and without interference with the return circulation from the lower limbs. If one will stand perfectly erect, the arms close to the body, and the arms fixed at right angles, and the lower limbs separated, about eight inches at the heels, he will understand thoroughly what I mean by a modified position of the soldier.

There is one thing against which I wish to take an unquestioned and decided stand—that is, the incorrect position assumed by many riders. This position is the resultant of a compressed vanity, or lack of knowledge, and has caused many unfavorable comment upon this silent foe. The correct position is that of a modified position of the soldier—a position of command, grace and perfect muscular control. The rider should have his handle bars so adjusted that when he sits perfectly erect the palm of his hand rests upon the bar without resting upon the arm muscles. The arms should be comfortably extended, and the trunk as far as possible held erect without being stiff. The legs can then be extended with comfort and without interference with the return circulation from the lower limbs. If one will stand perfectly erect, the arms close to the body, and the arms fixed at right angles, and the lower limbs separated, about eight inches at the heels, he will understand thoroughly what I mean by a modified position of the soldier.

There is one thing against which I wish to take an unquestioned and decided stand—that is, the incorrect position assumed by many riders. This position is the resultant of a compressed vanity, or lack of knowledge, and has caused many unfavorable comment upon this silent foe. The correct position is that of a modified position of the soldier—a position of command, grace and perfect muscular control. The rider should have his handle bars so adjusted that when he sits perfectly erect the palm of his hand rests upon the bar without resting upon the arm muscles. The arms should be comfortably extended, and the trunk as far as possible held erect without being stiff. The legs can then be extended with comfort and without interference with the return circulation from the lower limbs. If one will stand perfectly erect, the arms close to the body, and the arms fixed at right angles, and the lower limbs separated, about eight inches at the heels, he will understand thoroughly what I mean by a modified position of the soldier.

There is one thing against which I wish to take an unquestioned and decided stand—that is, the incorrect position assumed by many riders. This position is the resultant of a compressed vanity, or lack of knowledge, and has caused many unfavorable comment upon this silent foe. The correct position is that of a modified position of the soldier—a position of command, grace and perfect muscular control. The rider should have his handle bars so adjusted that when he sits perfectly erect the palm of his hand rests upon the bar without resting upon the arm muscles. The arms should be comfortably extended, and the trunk as far as possible held erect without being stiff. The legs can then be extended with comfort and without interference with the return circulation from the lower limbs. If one will stand perfectly erect, the arms close to the body, and the arms fixed at right angles, and the lower limbs separated, about eight inches at the heels, he will understand thoroughly what I mean by a modified position of the soldier.

There is one thing against which I wish to take an unquestioned and decided stand—that is, the incorrect position assumed by many riders. This position is the resultant of a compressed vanity, or lack of knowledge, and has caused many unfavorable comment upon this silent foe. The correct position is that of a modified position of the soldier—a position of command, grace and perfect muscular control. The rider should have his handle bars so adjusted that when he sits perfectly erect the palm of his hand rests upon the bar without resting upon the arm muscles. The arms should be comfortably extended, and the trunk as far as possible held erect without being stiff. The legs can then be extended with comfort and without interference with the return circulation from the lower limbs. If one will stand perfectly erect, the arms close to the body, and the arms fixed at right angles, and the lower limbs separated, about eight inches at the heels, he will understand thoroughly what I mean by a modified position of the soldier.

There is one thing against which I wish to take an unquestioned and decided stand—that is, the incorrect position assumed by many riders. This position is the resultant of a compressed vanity, or lack of knowledge, and has caused many unfavorable comment upon this silent foe. The correct position is that of a modified position of the soldier—a position of command, grace and perfect muscular control. The rider should have his handle bars so adjusted that when he sits perfectly erect the palm of his hand rests upon the bar without resting upon the arm muscles. The arms should be comfortably extended, and the trunk as far as possible held erect without being stiff. The legs can then be extended with comfort and without interference with the return circulation from the lower limbs. If one will stand perfectly erect, the arms close to the body, and the arms fixed at right angles, and the lower limbs separated, about eight inches at the heels, he will understand thoroughly what I mean by a modified position of the soldier.

There is one thing against which I wish to take an unquestioned and decided stand—that is, the incorrect position assumed by many riders. This position is the resultant of a compressed vanity, or lack of knowledge, and has caused many unfavorable comment upon this silent foe. The correct position is that of a modified position of the soldier—a position of command, grace and perfect muscular control. The rider should have his handle bars so adjusted that when he sits perfectly erect the palm of his hand rests upon the bar without resting upon the arm muscles. The arms should be comfortably extended, and the trunk as far as possible held erect without being stiff. The legs can then be extended with comfort and without interference with the return circulation from the lower limbs. If one will stand perfectly erect, the arms close to the body, and the arms fixed at right angles, and the lower limbs separated, about eight inches at the heels, he will understand thoroughly what I mean by a modified position of the soldier.

There is one thing against which I wish to take an unquestioned and decided stand—that is, the incorrect position assumed by many riders. This position is the resultant of a compressed vanity, or lack of knowledge, and has caused many unfavorable comment upon this silent foe. The correct position is that of a modified position of the soldier—a position of command, grace and perfect muscular control. The rider should have his handle bars so adjusted that when he sits perfectly erect the palm of his hand rests upon the bar without resting upon the arm muscles. The arms should be comfortably extended, and the trunk as far as possible held erect without being stiff. The legs can then be extended with comfort and without interference with the return circulation from the lower limbs. If one will stand perfectly erect, the arms close to the body, and the arms fixed at right angles, and the lower limbs separated, about eight inches at the heels, he will understand thoroughly what I mean by a modified position of the soldier.

There is one thing against which I wish to take an unquestioned and decided stand—that is, the incorrect position assumed by many riders. This position is the resultant of a compressed vanity, or lack of knowledge, and has caused many unfavorable comment upon this silent foe. The correct position is that of a modified position of the soldier—a position of command, grace and perfect muscular control. The rider should have his handle bars so adjusted that when he sits perfectly erect the palm of his hand rests upon the bar without resting upon the arm muscles. The arms should be comfortably extended, and the trunk as far as possible held erect without being stiff. The legs can then be extended with comfort and without interference with the return circulation from the lower limbs. If one will stand perfectly erect, the arms close to the body, and the arms fixed at right angles, and the lower limbs separated, about eight inches at the heels, he will understand thoroughly what I mean by a modified position of the soldier.

There is one thing against which I wish to take an unquestioned and decided stand—that is, the incorrect position assumed by many riders. This position is the resultant of a compressed vanity, or lack of knowledge, and has caused many unfavorable comment upon this silent foe. The correct position is that of a modified position of the soldier—a position of command, grace and perfect muscular control. The rider should have his handle bars so adjusted that when he sits perfectly erect the palm of his hand rests upon the bar without resting upon the arm muscles. The arms should be comfortably extended, and the trunk as far as possible held erect without being stiff. The legs can then be extended with comfort and without interference with the return circulation from the lower limbs. If one will stand perfectly erect, the arms close to the body, and the arms fixed at right angles, and the lower limbs separated, about eight inches at the heels, he will understand thoroughly what I mean by a modified position of the soldier.

There is one thing against which I wish to take an unquestioned and decided stand—that is, the incorrect position assumed by many riders. This position is the resultant of a compressed vanity, or lack of knowledge, and has caused many unfavorable comment upon this silent foe. The correct position is that of a modified position of the soldier—a position of command, grace and perfect muscular control. The rider should have his handle bars so adjusted that when he sits perfectly erect the palm of his hand rests upon the bar without resting upon the arm muscles. The arms should be comfortably extended, and the trunk as far as possible held erect without being stiff. The legs can then be extended with comfort and without interference with the return circulation from the lower limbs. If one will stand perfectly erect, the arms close to the body, and the arms fixed at right angles, and the lower limbs separated, about eight inches at the heels, he will understand thoroughly what I mean by a modified position of the soldier.

There is one thing against which I wish to take an unquestioned and decided stand—that is, the incorrect position assumed by many riders. This position is the resultant of a compressed vanity, or lack of knowledge, and has caused many unfavorable comment upon this silent foe. The correct position is that of a modified position of the soldier—a position of command, grace and perfect muscular control. The rider should have his handle bars so adjusted that when he sits perfectly erect the palm of his hand rests upon the bar without resting upon the arm muscles. The arms should be comfortably extended, and the trunk as far as possible held erect without being stiff. The legs can then be extended with comfort and without interference with the return circulation from the lower limbs. If one will stand perfectly erect, the arms close to the body, and the arms fixed at right angles, and the lower limbs separated, about eight inches at the heels, he will understand thoroughly what I mean by a modified position of the soldier.

There is one thing against which I wish to take an unquestioned and decided stand—that is, the incorrect position assumed by many riders. This position is the resultant of a compressed vanity, or lack of knowledge, and has caused many unfavorable comment upon this silent foe. The correct position is that of a modified position of the soldier—a position of command, grace and perfect muscular control. The rider should have his handle bars so adjusted that when he sits perfectly erect the palm of his hand rests upon the bar without resting upon the arm muscles. The arms should be comfortably extended, and the trunk as far as possible held erect without being stiff. The legs can then be extended with comfort and without interference with the return circulation from the lower limbs. If one will stand perfectly erect, the arms close to the body, and the arms fixed at right angles, and the lower limbs separated, about eight inches at the heels, he will understand thoroughly what I mean by a modified position of the soldier.

There is one thing against which I wish to take an unquestioned and decided stand—that is, the incorrect position assumed by many riders. This position is the resultant of a compressed vanity, or lack of knowledge, and has caused many unfavorable comment upon this silent foe. The correct position is that of a modified position of the soldier—a position of command, grace and perfect muscular control. The rider should have his handle bars so adjusted that when he sits perfectly erect the palm of his hand rests upon the bar without resting upon the arm muscles. The arms should be comfortably extended, and the trunk as far as possible held erect without being stiff. The legs can then be extended with comfort and without interference with the return circulation from the lower limbs. If one will stand perfectly erect, the arms close to the body, and the arms fixed at right angles, and the lower limbs separated, about eight inches at the heels, he will understand thoroughly what I mean by a modified position of the soldier.

There is one thing against which I wish to take an unquestioned and decided stand—that is, the incorrect position assumed by many riders. This position is the resultant of a compressed vanity, or lack of knowledge, and has caused many unfavorable comment upon this silent foe. The correct position is that of a modified position of the soldier—a position of command, grace and perfect muscular control. The rider should have his handle bars so adjusted that when he sits perfectly erect the palm of his hand rests upon the bar without resting upon the arm muscles. The arms should be comfortably extended, and the trunk as far as possible held erect without being stiff. The legs can then be extended with comfort and without interference with the return circulation from the lower limbs. If one will stand perfectly erect, the arms close to the body, and the arms fixed at right angles, and the lower limbs separated, about eight inches at the heels, he will understand thoroughly what I mean by a modified position of the soldier.

There is one thing against which I wish to take an unquestioned and decided stand—that is, the incorrect position assumed by many riders. This position is the resultant of a compressed vanity, or lack of knowledge, and has caused many unfavorable comment upon this silent foe. The correct position is that of a modified position of the soldier—a position of command, grace and perfect muscular control. The rider should have his handle bars so adjusted that when he sits perfectly erect the palm of his hand rests upon the bar without resting upon the arm muscles. The arms should be comfortably extended, and the trunk as far as possible held erect without being stiff. The legs can then be extended with comfort and without interference with the return circulation from the lower limbs. If one will stand perfectly erect, the arms close to the body, and the arms fixed at right angles, and the lower limbs separated, about eight inches at the heels, he will understand thoroughly what I mean by a modified position of the soldier.

WHERE TO ADVERTISE!

In appreciation of its regular patrons, THE LEDGER has inaugurated a plan that must be a great benefit to them.

All local merchants who are regular annual advertisers will be entitled, FREE OF CHARGE, to space under the classified headings below in these proportions:

1 inch advertisement, 2 Lines Free.

1/2 inch advertisement, 1 Line Free.

1/4 inch advertisement, 1/2 Line Free.

1/8 inch advertisement, 1/4 Line Free.

1/16 inch advertisement, 1/8 Line Free.

1/32 inch advertisement, 1/16 Line Free.

1/64 inch advertisement, 1/32 Line Free.

1/128 inch advertisement, 1/64 Line Free.

1/256 inch advertisement, 1/128 Line Free.

1/512 inch advertisement, 1/256 Line Free.

1/1024 inch advertisement, 1/512 Line Free.

1/2048 inch advertisement, 1/1024 Line Free.

1/4096 inch advertisement, 1/2048 Line Free.

1/8192 inch advertisement, 1/4096 Line Free.

1/16384 inch advertisement, 1/8192 Line Free.

1/32768 inch advertisement, 1/16384 Line Free.

1/65536 inch advertisement, 1/32768 Line Free.

1/131072 inch advertisement, 1/65536 Line Free.

1/262144 inch advertisement, 1/131072 Line Free.

1/524288 inch advertisement, 1/262144 Line Free.

1/1048576 inch advertisement, 1/524288 Line Free.

1/2097152 inch advertisement, 1/1048576 Line Free.

1/4194304 inch advertisement, 1/2097152 Line Free.

1/8388608 inch advertisement, 1/4194304 Line Free.

1/16777216 inch advertisement, 1/8388608 Line Free.

1/33554432 inch advertisement, 1/16777216 Line Free.

1/67108864 inch advertisement, 1/33554432 Line Free.

1/134217728 inch advertisement, 1/67108864 Line Free.

1/268435456 inch advertisement, 1/134217728 Line Free.

1/536870912 inch advertisement, 1/268435456 Line Free.

1/1073741824 inch advertisement, 1/536870912 Line Free.

1/2147483648 inch advertisement, 1/1073741824 Line Free.

1/4294967296 inch advertisement, 1/2147483648 Line Free.

1/8589934592 inch advertisement, 1/4294967296 Line Free.

1/17179869184 inch advertisement, 1/8589934592 Line Free.

1/34359738368 inch advertisement, 1/17179869184 Line Free.

1/68719476736 inch advertisement, 1/34359738368 Line Free.

1/137438953472 inch advertisement, 1/68719476736 Line Free.

1/274877906944 inch advertisement, 1/137438953472 Line Free.

1/549755813888 inch advertisement, 1/274877906944 Line Free.

1/1099511627776 inch advertisement, 1/549755813888 Line Free.

1/2199023255552 inch advertisement, 1/1099511627776 Line Free.

1/4398046511104 inch advertisement, 1/2199023255552 Line Free.

1/8796093022208 inch advertisement, 1/4398046511104 Line Free.

1/17592186044416 inch advertisement, 1/8796093022208 Line Free.

1/35184372088832 inch advertisement, 1/17592186044416 Line Free.

1/70368744177664 inch advertisement, 1/35184372088832 Line Free.

1/140737488355328 inch advertisement, 1/70368744177664 Line Free.

1/281474976710656 inch advertisement, 1/140737488355328 Line Free.

1/562949953421312 inch advertisement, 1/281474976710656 Line Free.

1/1125899906842624 inch advertisement, 1/562949953421312 Line Free.

1/2251799813685248 inch advertisement, 1/1125899906842624 Line Free.

1/4503599627370496 inch advertisement, 1/2251799813685248 Line Free.

1/9007199254740992 inch advertisement, 1/4503599627370496 Line Free.

1/18014398509481984 inch advertisement, 1/9007199254740992 Line Free.

1/36028797018963968 inch advertisement, 1/18014398509481984 Line Free.

1/72057594037927936 inch advertisement, 1/36028797018963968 Line Free.

1/144115188075855872 inch advertisement, 1/72057594037927936 Line Free.

1/288230376151711744 inch advertisement, 1/144115188075855872 Line Free.

1/576460752303423488 inch advertisement, 1/288230376151711744 Line Free.

